The Crowe Australasia Transparency report for 2021 provides a road map of our commitment to service and audit quality. With a continuing focus on technology, our people and enhanced quality control and risk management systems, our commitment to audit quality is paramount.

Message from the Chief Executive Officer

I am pleased to share with you Crowe Australasia's Transparency Report for the year ended 30 June 2021.

It's been almost two years since COVID-19 was first introduced to our lives and during that time, the audit profession has undergone its most rapid transformation in living memory. Against this backdrop, I am pleased to have the opportunity to highlight our business' ongoing commitment to audit quality.

Whether it be adapting workforces to remote working, implementing digital systems and technology or completely overhauling business processes, COVID-19 has accelerated the audit profession's transition toward new ways of operating that will outlast the immediate effects of the pandemic.

But, as the local focus turns to 'living with COVID-19', the reality for many of our clients when our economy re-opens, is one of increased regulation, changing consumer and employee expectations, limited occupancy rates, venue limits and limited financial support.

One of the key strengths audit firms will need as they address this changing landscape, is direct access to technical expertise that covers all business requirements.

Whether it's corporate finance, tax advisory, cybersecurity, fraud or sustainability, a multi-disciplinary service offering will be an enormous asset to clients when providing high-quality audit services. And, as businesses grow more complex, the ability to leverage that wider specialist expertise will become even more important.

The pandemic has demonstrated that, when the situation demands it, audit firms are capable of rapid change. With a more flexible, technologically aware and diverse approach to their service offering, the audit profession has the opportunity to create a more purposeful profession that increases our ability to add value to clients throughout the entire supply chain.

Message from the Executive Head, Audit and Assurance

Audit quality remains a focus, not just at Crowe, but for the industry as a whole.

The effectiveness of the audit process has never been more important and continued coverage of regulatory issues and potential audit failings remind us of the need to not only focus on audit quality, but to enhance it.

Crowe continues to invest in both its people and its systems to ensure that audit quality is an integral part of every job. It is reflected in our strategy, our processes and our people.

We continue to invest in technology as well as our people. Our utilisation of digital tools has increased particularly during periods of remote working enforced by pandemic conditions. This has not only enabled remote working for large parts of audits but has simultaneously allowed us to enhance our quality controls. Our ability to create in-house technology means we can systemise quality enhancements into our process and ensure it is embedded into our work flow.

Our staff remain the most critical aspect of our audit execution. We understand our clients can take comfort in the knowledge that our audits are performed to high standards adhering to stringent quality protocols.

We also understand that audit quality is not just about how we do the audit. It is our execution, our reporting and our communication to key stakeholders. Making sure we play our part in a process of open, transparent communication is just as important.

All of these aspects of the audit process are supported by the detailed processes and policies that guide us. We are constantly reviewing and revising Crowe's internal structures that support our commitment to quality, making sure they support our teams to effectively undertake their audits every day. This includes our leadership roles, training systems, performance management, methodology and technical support.

This Transparency Report reaffirms our commitment to the Crowe Global network and sets out our role as a key player in knowledge and information sharing across our network. Our global connection ensures that we remain aware and in front of emerging issues in audit quality and regulatory change.

Internal Quality Control System

Outlined in this section are the key elements of Crowe Australasia's internal quality control system for audit quality.

Leadership

Audit quality is integral to the work we do, and supports our objective of delivering a high quality and seamless service to our clients.

The Findex Board sets the 'tone at the top' and the communication of messages relating to audit quality emanates from the Findex Board.

It is the responsibility of the Executive Head of Audit and Assurance to ensure that the Firm's quality control practices are adhered to. All partners are responsible for promoting a culture that recognises audit quality.

People and culture

Our people demonstrate high standards of technical competency and commitment to the Firm's values and professional standards. In order to ensure that these standards are met, the Firm maintains a comprehensive performance appraisal system and provides all audit partners and staff with comprehensive learning and development opportunities, including:

- A structured audit training program which is designed to provide all audit engagement team members in the Australasia region with both technical and soft-skills training appropriate to their level of experience

- Local office-based or web-based courses focusing on topical subjects or specific areas of expertise
- Alerts to ensure that staff are kept informed of technical and regulatory developments
- Access to a library of local and international technical reference materials on accounting and audit matters
- Participation at Crowe Global conferences and events

Graduate recruits are expected to study for professional qualifications with either the Chartered Accountants Australia and New Zealand (CAANZ) or CPA Australia. Successful completion of professional exams is taken into account in making decisions about promotion and remuneration.

All audit partners and staff are expected to complete at least 120 hours of relevant Continuing Professional Development (CPD) over a three-year cycle, with a minimum of 20 hours in each year. From 1 July 2021, CAANZ members are also able to include on-the-job training for up to 50% of their 90 hours of verifiable CPD.

Senior audit staff attend approved external courses if their training and development needs are not addressed in-house.

Client acceptance and continuance

Our client acceptance and continuance processes are instrumental in ensuring that we only take on engagements where we have the competence and capacity to deliver the standard of work which our clients and profession expect, and where we can comply with our ethical and independence obligations.

Our client acceptance process includes a risk assessment process, which considers the client's risk profile, the nature of its operations, its ownership structure, the background of its directors and key management, and independence-related matters, including financial interests and any non-audit services provided.

Higher risk engagements

Certain engagements may be considered to have an increased level of risk, either because they are Public Interest Entities, or because specific non-standard risks are identified during the acceptance process. Examples of such risks may include complex transactions, or material operations within emerging markets.

Audit approach

As a member of Crowe Global, we apply Crowe Global's Audit Methodology. This provides us with a consistent, high-quality approach across the global network.

It ensures compliance with International Standards on Auditing (ISAs), and with other relevant professional and ethical requirements.

Supplementary material is developed and maintained by our local Audit Quality Team, to ensure that Australian-specific legal and regulatory requirements are addressed.

Audit Quality Team

During the year, our Audit Quality Team was responsible for implementing initiatives relating to audit quality, and technical support. This included:

- Providing timely, accurate and practical interpretation of accounting, auditing and professional standards, audit methodology and policies and procedures
- Developing an awareness relating to the practical application of accounting, auditing and professional standards amongst partners and staff
- Preparing thought leadership material in response to technical developments within the profession
- Engaging with the professional bodies and standard setters
- Managing and participating in certain monitoring activities
- Liaising with external reviewers and regulators
- Developing and maintaining our audit methodology to ensure our risk-based audit approach remains current and relevant
- Leveraging developments and support from process team on risk-based audit software, tools and resources to perform tasks efficiently and effectively.

Our audit methodology adopts a risk-based approach, which relies on developing an in-depth understanding of the entity under audit, its risks, and the system of internal control in place to manage those risks. This allows us to develop a tailored response to each issue identified, and to ensure that all material risks of misstatement are appropriately mitigated.

Our audit approach supports the application of professional judgement and an appropriate level of skepticism on each engagement, and our audit software includes compulsory schedules dedicated to ethical and independence requirements to ensure that these areas are considered on every audit engagement.

Our policies include detailed requirements in respect of the timely review of audit work performed. The nature, timing and extent of review depend on the level of audit risk and complexity associated with the client that is under review, and the experience of the engagement team member.

Engagement quality control review

Engagements that are graded as higher risk are subject to an independent Engagement Quality Control Review (EQCR). The requirement to perform an EQCR and the review policies themselves extend beyond the minimum requirements of the law and professional regulation, and are a key element of our system of internal quality control.

Reviewers are involved throughout the entire audit process and their role is not limited to a review immediately prior to completion of the engagement. All reviews are performed by audit partners who themselves perform audits of higher risk engagements, and we do not permit reviewers to delegate the performance of this responsibility to any other audit partner or member of staff.

We see the function of engagement quality control reviewers not to simply accept or override conclusions but to challenge judgements of the audit team in areas that are complex, significant or highly judgmental.

Consultation and collaboration

All audit partners and other team members are encouraged to consult with peers, subject matter experts and the Audit Quality Team on complex or contentious issues throughout audit engagements.

Specialists within the Firm and from Crowe Global are available to provide expert skills in areas such as information technology, valuations and taxation.

The Firm requires mandatory consultation outside of the audit engagement team when certain modified audit opinions are to be issued.

Monitoring processes and audit quality

The Group's Risk Management & Compliance team is responsible for conducting a quality process that forms part of the overall monitoring of the Firm's system of audit quality. This is a key component of the Firm's overall drive for continuous improvement in audit quality.

Our quality monitoring program includes:

- Periodical inspections of completed assurance engagements for each audit partner
- Targeted reviews of specific areas of selected completed audit engagements
- Pre-issuance reviews of specific areas of selected assurance engagements before the report is issued
- Follow-up of previous recommendations and agreed actions

Outcomes of individual monitoring activities must be reported to the Head of Risk Management & Compliance who will decide on the appropriate course of action in accordance with relevant policies.

Crowe Australasia is subject to review by a number of regulatory and professional bodies:

- Chartered Accountants Australia and New Zealand (CAANZ)
- CPA Australia
- Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC) *
- Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (PCAOB) **
- Crowe Global ***

 ASIC completed the latest round of continuous monitoring of our Firm in 2018.*

 Our Sydney audit partnership is registered with the PCAOB. The PCAOB conducted a review in November 2019.*

* The Crowe Global International Accounting & Audit Director leads this review. Our last review from Crowe Global was conducted in April 2021.*

Partner Remuneration

The Partner's remuneration includes the following elements:

- Base salary
- Short term incentives (STI's)

Partners' base salary is determined in consultation with the executive management team on an annual basis.

STI's are performance-based remuneration, which is calculated based on various financial and non-financial measures. For audit partners, audit quality is one of the benchmarks used in measuring performance.

No significant element of partner or audit staff remuneration is directly related to the provision of non-audit services to audit clients.

Independence Practices

Managing conflicts of interest and maintaining our independence is vital to our ability to service our clients. All audit partners and staff are expected to maintain the highest standard of ethics and be fully conversant with the requirements of the Code of Ethics for Professional Accountants.

In Australia, Crowe Australasia has developed and implemented policies and methodologies that allow us to perform audit services in conformity with:

- The Codes of Ethics and professional standards issued by the Australian Professional and Ethics Standards Board (APESB) and IESBA
- Local regulatory requirements (e.g. Corporations Act 2001)
- Crowe Global requirements

Crowe Global provides support to member firms in complying with the Code of Ethics of the IESBA.

Policies and guidance on financial interests in audit clients, business relationships, fee arrangements, rotation requirements, and the provision of non-audit services to audit clients are updated periodically and made available to all staff electronically.

Our procedures require any member of staff to notify the Firm immediately should any matters touching upon independence or ethical requirements arise.

All staff are required to complete an Annual Independence Declaration.

Engagement partners are required to follow a process to ensure that Firm's independence is established before a client engagement is accepted or continued. These procedures include the need to perform an independence check to be carried out by the Firm and within the Crowe Global network, as necessary, before acceptance of any new client relationship.

Our in-house Findex Independence Checks System involves all staff across the Group. Compliance with our independence procedures is reviewed internally at various times during the year through the application of a range of procedures.
