

Feeling overwhelmed at audit time?

Attracting, training and retaining skilled staff is a common challenge, in particular in remote or isolated local government areas.

The pressure of managing the year-end process in conjunction with other competing priorities can put significant strain on already limited internal resources and unnecessarily prolong the audit process.

Crowe Australasia's extensive experience across the local government sector provides us with a unique insight into the dynamics and mechanics of the local government entities we partner with. This helps us address and resolve the barriers many local governments face in achieving operational, financial and strategic success.

Our experienced team of advisers are ready to assist with all aspects of year-end reporting and audit preparation. They have extensive experience working with a range of local government entities and are equipped with the industry insight and technical expertise to manage the entire end-of-year process.
